"There is so much going on with politics and world matters, and we felt it was more important than ever to celebrate love," said Donne Kerestic, CEO at Chapel of the Flowers. "We're incredibly proud that our "little chapel in Las Vegas" is becoming known around the world as the "Destination for True Love," but we also want to recognize the local residents who have been getting married at Chapel of the Flowers for decades. We want to thank the locals who have said 'I do' and invite everyone from our great state to get married or renew their vows at Chapel of the Flowers in February."

The historic Chapel of the Flowers has won numerous awards from TripAdvisor, Vegas.com, Las Vegas Review-Journal, Wedding Wire and The Knot. The classic Victorian, glamorous Magnolia, and gorgeous modern La Capella chapels are stunning venues and popular with brides, grooms and their guests. The Glass Gardens, a unique rustic-chic venue with seating for up to 88 guests, is quickly becoming one of the hippest chapels in Las Vegas, with its advanced lighting system that allows couples to have a "sunset" wedding any time of the day.

Chapel of the Flowers still has ceremony times available for Valentine's week and during the Month of Love in Glass Gardens, La Capella, Magnolia and the Victorian Chapels, and is taking reservations for these and the Gazebo, as well as for chapels and reception venues at Tropicana LV.
